1. Share your personal experience to let them understand the difficulty in real life.. Try to reach every student and ask for their doubts. ... 2. Make teaching a two way 3. No

1. Better instruments so that we can do our practicals without any kind of hazards. 2. I know the time is limited but we should prioritise the field trips which should be related to our subject and such so that we can get encouraged and motivated to study hard. 3. Practical being same as in the theory as in my 1st semester, the practical was about a different subject than the theory so it was a little hard to understand the practical.

1. Field trips regularly which are connected to the subject I am studying. 2. Before creating content for a new syllabus, should think about how much students can take in one semester vs how much is needed in that semester. I think there should be a balance between those two where none of them is overwhelming the other. 3. In my subject (Physiology), English is must for Hons. but I think they should also allow Bangla or any other regional languages too as many students loses interest due to the English. I got that there are many Eng terminology which are used in Physiology but still there should be a little consideration. The studying and questions all should be in English but if a student is incapable to write the answer in English and writes it in Bangla that should be allowed. I mean the language doesn't matter, only thing matters is how he/she represents it. Thank you for allowing me to share my thoughts.

Teachers are to be encouraged to write text books on CCFUP implemented recently as part of NEP.

College must provide the seed money to publish such books.

Consider blending methods in lessons to appeal to more students at one time.

While the syllabus is comprehensive there remains the problem of clarity regarding how deep the teacher should go into a topic for a 4 credit course.

There is no autonomy for designing curriculum & framing syllabus.

- Training programs are needed in the recent technologies in teaching and learning.
- Now about 20 Smart ICT enabled classrooms are there. More such rooms are required.
- Some syllabi are having content overloaded which need to be reviewed.
- Some extra classes have been arranged for competitive examination like JAM, NET SET etc.
- Reference book should be increased in library.
- Syllabus need to be reviewed for skill based and also it should provide more hands on experience.

- Upcoming NEP-2020 based syllabus will hopefully be more skillful and need based one.

Attempts have been made to purchase some new books as prescribed by different departments and will arrive definitely in the next session.
